What Are Advance Directives?

Advance directives are written instructions, recognized under {{AGENCY_STATE}} law, regarding your wishes for medical care if you become unable to speak for yourself. Common advance directives include a Living Will, Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, and out-of-hospital DNR orders.

Your Choices

☐ I have an advance directive. A copy is attached / will be provided.

☐ I do not have an advance directive and would like more information.

☐ I do not have an advance directive and decline information at this time.

Agency Policy

Caregivers are not authorized to witness or sign as a witness to advance directives. The Agency will follow valid advance directives to the extent permitted by law and Agency scope of practice. In the event of a medical emergency without a valid out-of-hospital DNR, caregivers will call 911 and provide CPR if trained.
